MOVE TO BAR STANFORD WOMEN IS CAUSE OF HOT FEMININE PROTEST

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal.—Five hundred Stanford women students have risen in a body in wrath against the male members of the university, following the publication in the Illustrated Review, a college organ, of an article advocating barring co-eds from the institution. Lord Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade" is no fiercer than the conflict being waged by Stanford's women students. Instead of "half a league onward," according to the poem's refrain, it is "half a column—half a page onward!" for the women are fighting the foes of their sex with pen, typewriter and vocal efforts.

Editor R. A. Griffin, sponsor for the article in the Illustrated Review, which advocated elimination of the 500 women students from Stanford enrollments of the future, is beset on all sides by the co-eds, who are angry and indignant and ready for war.

Among the sturdy defenders of the fair students is Chancellor Emeritus David Starr Jordan, who indignantly exclaims through the press that if women are excluded from Stanford "those of us who, as pioneers, helped to create its methods and spirit, will turn over in our graves and face toward Berkeley." This threat of facing the rival institution in death, although uttered in a tone not calculated to create seriousness, has sobered some of the exuberant "women haters." Anything which refers to the University of California always brings a sower and somewhat malignant glance from student eyes.

BABY WELFARE WORK GROWING

Those in charge of the new baby welfare movement at Palama Settlement give reports of the first work there that indicate considerable success from the beginning. As many as seven babies have come to the welfare rooms in one day compared with only one or two to start with and as the good work is spread from mouth to mouth among mothers who cannot afford to pay for the expert medical examination and advice regarding their infants' health the workers expect the number to grow proportionately.

Three afternoons a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday—babies are received to be tested and scored. Mornings are devoted to searching the city for mothers with new born babies who might be benefited by their assistance. The other afternoons are spent in instructing mothers in the care of their young.

One of the most beneficial things done by the settlement is to recommend a food diet for the baby after its examination. If it should have cow's milk and the mother cannot afford such a delicacy, a substitute is given. Through efforts of local charitable organizations, however, very few babies in need of the milk must go without it.

Secretary Lansing asked Congress for an appropriation of $75,000 to enable the President to make special allowances to American diplomatic and consular officers in China so to adjust their official income to the cost of living.

LOCAL EXPERT GIVES ADVICE

Harry Henry of Smoot & Steinhauser, Ltd., manager of the Willard storage battery service station in this city, says that batteries are often blame-justly.

"In a very interesting booklet recently issued by the Willard company, the fact is brought out that a storage battery goes dead either because it has not been regularly filled with distilled water or the owner has neglected to keep it fully charged either by running the car or having it charged from an outside source.

"Once in a while a starved condition of a battery may be due to poor generator adjustment or to a material increase in the lamp load. If the generator is unable to supply current to the battery as fast as it is taken out, or if the owner does not run his car enough in the day time to give the generator a chance to restore the current used by night driving, his battery is bound to show the effect. This can be remedied, however, by a long charge at a low rate after testing the cells with a hydrometer to determine their specific gravity.

"The Willard service station will make this test free of charge and will furnish a copy of the booklet, 'Are you Starving Your Storage Battery,' which covers the subject in greater detail."
